Nazis Cracking On All Fronts

Big Moscow Guns Hail Fall Of Berlin; City Now A 'Shell'

MOSCOW, May 3—The complete conquest of Berlin was announced last night in an Order of the Day by Marshal Stalin, and the maximum victory salute of 24 salvos from 324 guns thundered through the Russian capital to celebrate a victory for which the Soviet people have been waiting for many months.

Described by Stalin as "the center of German imperialism and heart of German aggression," Berlin fell to the combined troops of Marshals George Zhukov's and Ivan Konev's armies.

Resistance in Berlin ended at 3 PM (Moscow time) yesterday when General Wessling, chief of the capital's garrison, ordered a surrender. By 9 PM more than 70,000 Germans were taken prisoner. The total rose to more than 100,000 by today.

The hush of a dead nation lay over Berlin today, according to the Associated Press. The beaten, broken city was virtually a shell that compares with the ruin of Warsaw.

The somber silence was broken by occasional explosions in the smoking ruins, and by the shuffle of thousands of once arrogant Storm Troopers moving to prison camps.

Scores of stunned Berliners crawled out of subways and out of the cellars of ruined buildings. They found victorious Soviet soldiers, who had kept their appointment with the Nazis in Berlin, strolling along Berlin's most famous avenue, Unter den Linden in the warmth of a bright, spring day.

With the complete occupation of Berlin 16 days after the Soviet jumpoff from the Oder and Neisse River bridgeheads, the Russian people celebrated enthusiastically. The fall of the German capital gave Russians their greatest thrill of the war, Reuter's said.

Traffic stopped in the streets as loudspeakers boomed out the news to the crowds. Complete strangers embraced each other like long-lost brothers. People danced in the streets, cheered and threw caps in the air. "It's wonderful, wonderful," they kept telling each other.

The Russians took many German generals with the garrison defending Berlin.

'Lucky' Col. Darby Killed By 88 Shell

AFHQ, May 3—Col. William O. Darby, famed leader of the Rangers, had been killed in action by an unlucky shot from an 88 mm. shell just two days before the capitulation of the Germans in Italy, it became known today.

The 34-year-old Darby organized and led the American Rangers through the toughest fighting at Dieppe, Arzew, Tunisia, Sicily and Italy.

Colonel Darby returned to the States last May after spending 60 days at Anzio with the remnants of his outfit who in addition to Dieppe, made four amphibious landings on D-Day against the toughest kind of opposition.

He returned to Italy only recently and became assistant divisional commander of the 10th Mountain Division.

The first notice that Colonel Darby was in action came when he led an amphibious operation to the west shore of Lake Garda on April 30.

His task force captured Mussolini's villa at Gargnano just five days after the former dictator left there in the vain flight which ended in his death.

It was learned today, according to Boots Norgaard of the Associated Press, that Darby was standing with a regimental commander making preparations for an attack to the north when two shells from an 88 landed beside them. Colonel Darby was killed and the regimental commander wounded.

Expressions of numbed astonishment and regret came from both enlisted men and officers in this area as soon as word of Darby's death spread. Most of the soldiers who knew him had begun to regard

France To Demand Spain Deliver Laval

PARIS, May 3 — Extradition of Pierre Laval will be demanded by the French Government, United Press said today, unless General Francisco Franco's Government agrees to deliver the former Vichy Premier to French authorities.

Laval, his wife, Abel Bonnard (Minister of Education in the last Vichy cabinet), Eugene Bonnard (son of Abel), Maurice Gabolde (Vichy Minister of Justice), a man named Paul Neraud, and two German pilots landed in a German Junker plane at the Prat de Llobregat airfield in Barcelona, Spain, yesterday, according to Reuter's.

The Spanish Foreign Office has denied that Marcel Deat, pro-Nazi editor, or Laval's daughter, the Countess de Chambrun, arrived with Laval.

The group has been placed incommunicado in Montjuich Fortress near Barcelona, the Madrid statement said, and the Spanish Government was reported to have insisted that the group get out of Spain.

Laval was reported to have declared he would surrender "to a commission representing the Allied nations." It was pointed out that whether or not he is a war criminal under the War Crimes Commission's definition may be doubtful, although whether he is a traitor under French law is virtually certain, and that his insistence on delivery to a "commission" may be based on this distinction.

Perhaps He Needed Good Paperhanger!

DUBLIN, May 3—The Irish Government remains tenaciously neutral to the bitter end. Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, who is also Foreign Minister, last night called on Dr. Hempel, German Minister, to express condolences on the death of Adolf Hitler, according to Reuter's.

There has been no report thus far of similar action by any other neutral state.

Work On Charter Begins At Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3—With the initial controversies at an end, and in an atmosphere of "Big Four" harmony, the four main commissions and 12 committees of the World Security Conference were to start work today on drawing up the final charter to govern the proposed international organization.

The U. S. Secretary of State, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., received late yesterday a letter from four world-known labor leaders, asking that the World Trade Union Congress be admitted in a consultative capacity to the United Nations Conference. The four are Sidney Hillman, representing the Congress of Industrial Organizations; Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the British Trades Unions Congress; M. Tarasov, representing the All-Russian Trade Union Council, and Louis Saillant, representing the French General Confederation of Labor.

"We believe that the 60,000,000 workers we represent must be given a voice in the determination of the historic issues which your conference is called upon to decide," the four declared. The labor leaders and others are meeting across the bay at Oakland to draft a constitution for a new worldwide labor organization, first discussed in London in February.

The letter, presented to the Steering Committee informally two days ago, according to Army News Service, by Vyacheslav M. Molotov, chief Russian representative, asked Mr.

Wounded All Desire To Help Their Old Outfits Celebrate

All winter long during the days of "patrol activity," Sgt. Bob Fleisher, Stars and Stripes front-line reporter, looked forward to the day when he could be in the field with the 5th Army troops for the big day. Instead, the news of the Nazi surrender in Italy found Fleisher in a general hospital, where he is recovering from shrapnel wounds received on April 23, when he made the first crossing of the Po River with the 10th Mountain Division.

AT A GENERAL HOSPITAL, May 3—Fifth Army men, wounded in this last great drive, reacted to the news of their final and complete victory with mingled emotions, but all were agreed on one point: "Oh, to be back with our outfits tonight."

There was no celebration here. The news first broke in most of the wards over the radio at six o'clock last night. Those who could get out of bed huddled around the loudspeaker. They were tense and silent. Others lay in their beds, listening hard but not saying much. When the first flash was finished, those at the radio stood around quietly for a moment; then went back to their beds and flopped.

"The Germans in Italy surrendered unconditionally," said one in a low voice. "Now if they do the same on the other fronts, we got it made."

In one ward, D-300, it seemed on the surface as if everyone was taking the news without a flutter. No one tried to dance a jig or

'Unforgettable Memories' Cited By General Truscott

WITH THE 5TH ARMY, May 3—Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott Jr., Commanding General of the 5th Army, last night issued the following congratulatory message to officers and men serving under him:

"The enemy in Italy has surrendered unconditionally, and the bitter Italian campaign has ended. Its hardships and tribulations are now behind, but to you men of the 5th Army who have fought so gloriously through to victory, they will remain unforgettable memories. They will be forged, too, in the history of this war as a record of the inspired bravery and the traditional courage of free peoples.

"The long months of steady, difficult operations over perhaps the most formidable terrain that any army has had to fight—against the most seasoned and the toughest troops that the enemy could produce—mark a campaign which not only opened the assault upon the continent of Europe but which, in the shattering blows that it has struck, has contributed in a very great measure to that final victory in the west which is now in sight.

"It is fitting that this campaign should have culminated in your magnificent performance in the final battles of these past few weeks. The accomplishments of every fighting unit have been superb, officers and men rising to inspired heights.

"Storming rapidly and relentlessly out of your winter positions in the Apennines—through defenses heavily prepared and in great depth, and manned by an enemy resisting to the last because of a fanatical belief in his own abortive cause—you swarmed out of the valley of the Po to overwhelm him. Creating confusion and chaos in his ranks, by the flight and fury of your attack, in scarcely more than two weeks you captured enormous numbers of personnel, seized huge quantities of stores and equipment, inflicted thousands of casualties, and generated the widespread demoralization which rendered utterly ineffective one of the best fighting machines that the enemy had been able to place on the battlefield. Throughout all operations, the feats performed by service and supporting units have been prodigious. Your accomplishments engendered in the combat elements a confidence which permitted them a complete freedom of action and enabled them to go forward in the knowledge that you would not fail them.

"You are all—every man and every officer, of all the nationalities which make up this Army—deserving of the high praise that grateful nations now extend to you.

"Please accept my own humble tribute. I regret that I cannot find words to express fully and adequately the sincerity of my respect for the character and fighting qualities of you, the members of this magnificent Army. I am proud—as only the commander of a valiant, victorious army can be—and deeply gratified at your splendid victory."

Felicitations Come To Alexander, Clark From Around World

AFHQ, May 3—Congratulatory messages on the victory in Italy came from many places over the world today to Field Marshal Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, Supreme Allied Commander, Mediterranean Theater; General Mark W. Clark, 15th Army Group commander, and the officers and men of their command.

The gratitude of the President and people of the United States was expressed by President Harry S. Truman in two messages.

The President sent the following to Field Marshal Alexander: "On this momentous occasion of the surrender of the German armed forces in Italy I convey to you from the President and the people of the United States congratulations on the signal success of the Allied armies, navy and air force under your command, gained only by persistent, heroic effort through many months of a most difficult campaign. I send also to you personally our appreciation of the high order of your leadership which conducted our armies to their complete victory."

MESSAGE TO CLARK

Mr. Truman also congratulated General Clark:

"On the occasion of the final brilliant victory of the Allied armies in Italy in imposing unconditional surrender upon the enemy, I wish to convey to the American forces under your command, and to you personally, the appreciation and gratitude of the President and people of the U. S.

"No praise is adequate for the heroic achievements and magnificent courage of every individual under your command during this long and trying campaign.

"America is proud of the essential contribution made by your gallant leadership and the deathless valor of your men."

Joseph E. Grew, Acting Secretary of State, commented that "the crushing defeat of the German armies in Italy—so effectively aided by the energy, courage and spirit of responsibility of Italian Patriots—brings with it the liberation of northern Italy. Italy, which has been fighting the common enemy since 1943, is now rid of the German yoke."

In the House of Commons last night, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, announcing the surrender of the German armies in Italy, said:

"Not only has a vast area of territory vital in its character fallen into the hands of Supreme Commander Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander but the actual surrender which has taken place, so far as comprising numbers, constitutes, I believe, a record for the whole of this war, and it must be helpful to further the events for which we are looking."

The Prime Minister of Canada, W. L. Mackenzie King, sent this message to Marshal Alexander: "On the occasion of the surrender of German forces in northern Italy, allow me on behalf of the Government and people of Canada most warmly to congratulate you and the forces under your command on the successful conclusion of a memorable campaign. We recall with satisfaction that in the Italian Theater, Canadian forces bore their due share."

ALLIED FLEETS PRAISED

Admiral Sir John Cunningham, Allied Naval Commander in Chief, Mediterranean, congratulated all the men and women of the Allied fleets and the Merchant navies in the Mediterranean Theater on the great contribution they made.

"You have totally destroyed the enemy's sea forces in the Mediterranean and through nearly six years of war against a powerful and unscrupulous enemy you have successfully transported, supported and sustained the land and air forces which have now achieved so glorious a victory."

From the Governor-General of New Zealand came this message to Marshal Alexander: "Your inspiring leadership throughout the past years has made history and has culminated, as we were all confident it would, in an overwhelming victory, the tidings of which will bring relief and joy throughout the Empire."

Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi of Italy told the Supreme Commander: "Italy is proud of having fought shoulder to shoulder with the United Nations. The success which today crowns this long battle fills our hearts with rejoicing and strengthens the ties binding us to our comrades in arms."

A. F. H. Q. COMMUNIQUE NO. 468 FOR 3 MAY 1945
FOR RELEASE AT 1230 PMS

Fighting has ceased in Northern Italy west of the ISONZO river with the unconditional surrender of all enemy troops under command of German Army Group "C". There remain only the multitudinous administrative details of assembling and disarming the scattered and disorganized remnants of the once proud Wehrmacht.

In NE Italy the New Zealand Division has occupied the important port of TRIESTE. General Freyberg accepted the surrender of the German garrison to the Allied Forces at 1630 hrs on Wednesday. Elements of the New Zealand Division have also occupied GORIZIA.

The total number of German prisoners taken by 15th Army Group prior to the cessation of hostilities yesterday was in excess of 230,000.

END COMMUNIQUE

The Allied Force Headquarters communique has been issued 468 times. This is the last one which was handed to correspondents yesterday morning. It told of the cessation of hostilities in northern Italy, west of the Isonzo, the occupation of the port of Trieste by the New Zealanders and the capture of more than 230,000 prisoners prior to the surrender.

wave a cast-encased arm in the air. No one shouted or clapped. The card games went on as usual, and the nurses went about their business without breaking stride. But every now and then, when there was a break in the every-day conversation, someone would say something to show that he had been thinking and feeling things about the best piece of news of the Italian campaign.

"God, it's quiet in here," said a wounded doggie. "I guess they're waiting for the final victory. There will be plenty of whoopin' and hollerin' then."

"I bet they're having a gay old time in the States," an 85th Division man mused. "I bet my old lady is plenty proud."

Later, when the text of the various orders of the day came over the air, little groups of walking patients formed again about the radio. They listened carefully to everything that was said. They heard the lavish praise heaped upon them by their Allied leaders at Allied Force Headquarters, for their magnificent job in winding up this, the longest and in many ways the bitterest campaign of the European war. They accepted the praise quietly and thoughtfully, and went back to their beds until the next news flash.

But quiet didn't reign everywhere. "You should have been back in our ward, E-402," said a 34th Division man. "They really blew their tops in there when they heard the news. Old Harry, the ward boy, nearly dove out of the window and there was so much noise and clapping that you couldn't hear a thing for five minutes."

Although nothing could dampen the general feeling of quiet satisfaction—nor the unanimous desire of every man to be back with his outfit now that it was over—most of the wounded doughboys here thought that the future in general was a big question mark.

They have written off the European campaign as far as their participation in it is concerned, but the big shining personal V-Day of every doggie is still the day he gets to go home.

Cannon Lauds Men Of His Command

MAAF HEADQUARTERS, May 3—Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon, commander in chief of the Mediterranean Allied Air Forces, issued the following statement today on the end of the Italy campaign:

"To all ranks of the Mediterranean Allied Air Forces, Air Marshal Garrod and I offer our heartiest congratulations on the part you have played in bringing about the unconditional surrender of the enemy.

"This triumphant conclusion to many years of courageous fighting and supreme devotion to duty gives you, one and all, just cause for pride and satisfaction.

"Such complete victory has only been made possible by dauntless enthusiasm, and by our Allied unity of purpose.

"Remember with deep gratitude those who have given their lives in service to our cause. For the many tasks that still lie ahead of us, keep alive that spirit which has brought us all in comradeship to the victory in which we are proudly rejoicing at this moment."

Air Marshal Sir Guy Garrod is Commander in Chief, RAF, Mediterranean and Middle East.

Some Soup!

YAPHANK, N. Y., May 3 (ANS)—A pot of chicken soup made from 2,500 dollars worth of ingredients was served to patients at the Suffolk County Home today. Seventeen game cocks confiscated in a raid on a cock fight went into the soup. Experts valued the birds at as much as 200 dollars each.

South Africa Greetings Sent To Allies In MTO

AFHQ, May 3—A letter of congratulations on the success of the Italian campaign has been received by Field Marshal Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander from Mr. J. H. Hofmeyr, Acting Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, it was announced yesterday.

The message to the Supreme Allied Commander, MTO, said, in part: "Please accept my cordial congratulations on the magnificent success of the Armies under your command. We are very happy in this continued association of our South African troops with yours."

Men Of 8th Army End Long Journey

By Sgt. JACK FOISIE
Staff Correspondent

WITH THE 8TH ARMY, May 3—The 8th Army's long road back from El Alamein—perhaps the longest of any Allied field force of this war—came to an end yesterday with the unconditional surrender of all remaining German forces in Italy.

It was the night to celebrate, but the celebration was generally subdued and restrained. The lack of slap-happy celebration was itself a topic of conversation as the desert veterans—some with five years of fighting behind them—asked one another why they weren't kicking the bottle over.

The reasons boiled down to these:

1. Although it was the end of the bitter, costly Italian campaign, it was not the end of the war for the Tommies. For such empire troops as the New Zealanders and the South Africans, presumably, it could be the end of the war in Europe, as they have not been committed to occupational tasks.

This was also true of the Poles and, on the 5th Army front, of the Brazilians. Yet the feeling prevailed everywhere that the road back home had not quite been reached.

2. Many of the combat troops were still on the move, rounding up the disorganized foe or heading toward their occupational areas. There was little time to celebrate and, besides, the troops were tired after the furious 23-day campaign which has now ended in complete victory.

As far as can be learned, all German units have ceased resistance in those areas commanded by Col. Gen. Heinrich von Vietinghoff Scheel, even though disrupted communications may have left isolated groups of the enemy still uninformed of their status.

3. The flurry of rumors early this week of a general surrender throughout Europe gave this partial surrender a tinge of anti-climax.

Although the formal surrender by Vietinghoff still was a complete surprise to the troops, it has been evident for some time that, for all practical purposes, the campaign in Italy was over. During the past few days whole German columns have been traveling south through the Allied lines to surrender.

German horse-drawn columns engaged in the same task gave Allied troops their first graphic picture of how decimated the German army—once the finest in the world—had become. One could almost see the men shrinking in their crowded trucks as Allied planes roared overhead in gleeful swoops—it had been a long time since German convoys could travel the Po Valley roads in daylight.

Gen. Arnold Lauds Brazilian Squadron

MAAF HEADQUARTERS, May 3—After his tour of front-line Brazilian flying installations, General Henry H. Arnold, Commanding General USAAP, sent a note of commendation to the Brazilian airmen, it was disclosed yesterday.

His message, addressed to Lt. Col. Nero Moura, commanding officer of the 1st Brazilian Fighter Squadron, said that "the way you and your men have integrated yourselves into the picture of air warfare in this theater should serve as an inspiration for you and your fellow countrymen."

Trained in the United States and sent overseas as a unit, the squadron flew its first mission on Oct. 31, 1944. As fighter escort to the bombers of the 12th Air Force, they have been on a continual operational status for the past seven months. They have been described by MAAF officials as an aggressive, able unit which can bomb, strafe, or fly close protective formation to the tactical planes of other Allied forces.

Censorship Won't Be In-Tents Now

WITH THE 8TH ARMY, May 3—The question of how the cessation of hostilities in Italy will affect war censorship might find some significance in the following: The 8th Army censorship tent was completely destroyed by a mysterious fire early this morning.

Censor Capt. John Ford of New York City admits he can't suspect a correspondent, since none was in camp at the time.

Invasion Of Borneo Officially Confirmed

MANILA, May 3—The invasion of Borneo by Allied troops was confirmed by General Douglas MacArthur today. The Supreme Commander announced that Australian troops, supported by units of the United States 7th Fleet and ships of the Royal Australian Navy, landed on Tarakan, tiny island just off the southeast coast of Borneo.

The beachhead was established immediately. There was no Japanese air or sea opposition, and ground resistance appeared to have been light. Airmen of the U. S. 5th Air Force took part.

The Australians, veterans of the Middle East, hit the beach two miles east of Tarakan airfield.

ADVANCE ON OKINAWA
GUAM, May 3—Spearheaded by tanks and flamethrowers, the U. S. 7th Division advanced 1,400 yards yesterday on southwestern Okinawa in a fierce battle for high ground, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The Americans reached Gaja Hill, a mile north of Yonabaru Airfield, under cover of a barrage from naval guns.

Super Fortresses from the Marianas struck again at fields from which enemy planes have been attacking shipping off Okinawa. The War Department in Washington announced that B-29s were over Kyushu, southernmost Japanese homeland island. Carrier planes sank a Japanese transport and three cargo ships off Kyushu and Honshu.

Nazi Garrisons Reported Pulling Out Of Denmark

LONDON, May 3—The Germans are prepared to evacuate Denmark, Gordon Young, London Daily Express reporter, said in a dispatch today after visiting several Danish cities as a guest of the underground.

He wrote, "What seems to have been happening in Denmark is this: The Germans everywhere are preparing to pull out of Denmark, but have not yet done so. Hitler's death has left them in confusion. The Germans are already gone from a number of provincial towns."

German Peace Plea In West Confirmed

WASHINGTON, May 3—Germany offered to surrender unconditionally to the western front Allies, but not to Russia. President Harry S. Truman and Prime Minister Winston Churchill told Marshal Joseph Stalin that the western Allies were rejecting the offer.

No reply has been received from Germany to President Truman's demand for unconditional surrender "to the three Allied Governments on all fronts." These facts were confirmed here yesterday by the Acting Secretary of State, Joseph C. Grew.

Heed News Of Italy, Truman Warns Foes

WASHINGTON, May 3 (ANS)—President Truman today announced the unconditional surrender of the German forces in Italy and said: "Only folly and chaos can now delay the general capitulation everywhere of the German armies."

Truman announced he had sent congratulatory messages to the Allied commanders, and added in a statement, "Let Japan as well as Germany understand the meaning of these events." The text of President Truman's statement was:

"The Allied armies in Italy have won the unconditional surrender of German forces on the first European soil to which, from the west, we carried our arms and our determination.

"The collapse of military tyranny in Italy, however, is no victory in Italy alone, but part of the general triumph we are expectantly awaiting on the whole continent of Europe. Only folly and chaos can now delay general capitulation everywhere of German armies.

"I have dispatched congratulatory messages to Allied and American officers who led our forces to complete defeat of the Germans in Italy. They deserve our praise for the victory. We have a right to be proud of the success of our armies.

"Let Japan as well as Germany understand the meaning of these events. Unless they are lost in fanaticism and are determined upon suicide they must recognize the meaning of the increasingly swifter moving power now ready for capitulation or destruction of the so recently arrogant enemies of mankind."

Honor Medal To Tarheel Who Stopped Nazi Push

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP)—The Congressional Medal is going to a North Carolina doughboy who, single-handed, halted a German breakthrough and killed at least 23 Nazis near Herron, Germany, last October 18, the War Department announced today.

He is Sgt. Max Thompson, 21, who used everything he could lay hands on—machine gun, bazooka, automatic rifle and grenades—to smash a tank that led the attack.

Will Light Dome

WASHINGTON, May 3 (ANS)—The war-darkened Capitol dome will be lighted again when the war in Europe ends, Rep. J. Buell Snyder, (D., Pa.), told the House today.

Mr. Grew, acting in the absence of Edward R. Stettinius Jr., who is at San Francisco, told a press conference the U. S. legation in Stockholm, Sweden, had been told yesterday by Count Folke Bernadotte that he had delivered President Truman's message to Himmmler, "but had received no reply" from the German Gestapo chief.

To reporters, Mr. Grew outlined the chronology of the Himmmler offer. According to Army News Service, this is what Mr. Grew said had happened:

IN REVIEW

On April 24 at 11 PM, the U. S. Minister to Sweden, Herschel V. Johnson, and the British Minister there, were called to the Swedish Foreign Office. They were told of the offer made by Heinrich Himmmler through Count Folke Bernadotte.

At 3 AM on April 25, Mr. Johnson reported the matter to the State Department here. He said that Himmmler had met Bernadotte at Luebeck, Germany at 1 AM on April 24. The meeting was at Himmmler's request, it was said. Himmmler then said, according to the account, that Hitler was so ill he might already be dead, and that he couldn't live more than two days.

Himmmler declared to the Swedish count that he, Himmmler, had full authority to act for Germany. He asked the Swedish Government to arrange a meeting between himself and General Dwight D. Eisenhower. At such a meeting, Himmmler would arrange a capitulation on the whole western front. Himmmler stipulated that his offer excluded the Soviet Union.

HIMMLER AGREED

Count Bernadotte asked whether Norway and Denmark were included in the capitulation; Himmmler agreed to order German forces in Norway and Denmark to surrender "to American, British or Swedish troops." He declared that, after the west front surrender, he hoped to be able to go on fighting the Russians on the eastern front.

After the U. S. minister's report had been received from Stockholm, President Truman met—on April 25—with high U. S. military leaders at the Pentagon building.

President Truman then made contact, Mr. Grew said, with Prime Minister Churchill, to agree on the text of a message to be sent to Marshal Stalin. The President then sent Stalin a message advising him of the Himmmler offer and "stating that the British and American Governments proposed to reject it," Mr. Grew said.

On April 28, Sen. Tom Connally (D., Texas), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and vice chairman of the U. S. delegation at San Francisco, gave to Associated Press the information on which the "unconditional surrender" news was based—news that flashed all around the world.

Hannegan Named Postmaster - Gen'l

WASHINGTON, May 3 (ANS)—In the first shift in the old Roosevelt cabinet, President Truman today announced the resignation of Postmaster-General Frank Walker and the selection of Robert E. Hannegan to succeed him.

Walker, 59, a New York lawyer and theater chain operator, will leave the cabinet voluntarily June 30, after completing the reorganization of his department.

Hannegan, 41, the Missourian who ran the late President Roosevelt's fourth term campaign, will take over his new job July 1, if confirmed by the Senate. He will retain the Democratic National Chairmanship. James A. Farley held both posts for eight years, and Walker for one year, under Roosevelt.

In a second major appointment announced at his news conference today, Truman said he was naming David E. Lilienthal for another nine-year term as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, starting May 18. In doing so, he sided with Alabama and against Tennessee Senators.

Walker resigned April 16, the day President Truman addressed Congress after taking over the reins of the Government four days earlier.

The President also announced appointment of Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson to be chief of U. S. counsel at trials of war criminals to be conducted by an International Military Tribunal, in instances where the crimes are not confined to specific locality.

From Frisco To Gotham, News Of Hitler's Death Doubted

By Sgts. GEORGE HAKIM and HERB MITGANG Staff Correspondents

NEW YORK, May 2 (Delayed)—The sudden announcement that Hitler is dead was received here with unprecedented skepticism, mockery and disbelief. The reason attributed to this unusual reaction by most people in the street was because it was followed in the breath of false peace rumors which caused great celebrations Saturday night.

Skeptics are pointing out that this report is preliminary. Any disappearance act of the Fuehrer must have been planned. The legend of Hitler dying in Goetter Daemmerung is the finale to the terrible tragedy he precipitated and fits into known Nazi propaganda plans.

Neither the New York Times nor the Tribune is certain that the Nazis are speaking the truth. An editorial in the Times said: "Regardless of the veracity of the German radio, Hitler had to die as the announcement said he did. The cold-blooded, humorless Germans exalted Nazism in a religion which proclaimed Hitler not only the Fuehrer of all Germans but also their God. He could not have been permitted to die like Mussolini, to be kicked about and strung up."

The New York Herald-Tribune said, "It is even possible that he has not died at all and that all of this is some last fantastic piece play-acting in the tragedy of which he was the center. The man who once said that any lie would work if big enough has been deprived by the enormity of his own lying of even the dignity of death."

New Yorkers, speculating this morning about what happened to Hitler, found many loopholes in the Hamburg radio report. Was the Fuehrer dead days or weeks? Was he killed in action? Did Himmmler dispose of him or was it another bomb plot? Did he die a natural death, a nervous breakdown or was he shot in the back? Or didn't he die at all?

A conductor on a 5th Avenue bus, reading over the shoulder of fellow riders the banner headlines, "Hitler Dies," said, "Yes, Hitler dies—his moustache."

Hans Jacob, radio commentator, offered, "I do not believe this fairy tale of the Fuehrer fighting to the last breath against Bolshevism. I do not believe this coward is able to fight at all."

The excitement expected to follow the announcement of the number one war criminal's death did not materialize here. The editor of the Trade Journal, Chris Luhnnow, said that "the news, true or otherwise, leaves me cold. It is anticlimactical, for the war in Europe is virtually over. I'll believe his death when the Germans or Russians produce his body."

Thomas Mann, famed German writer who was exiled by the Nazis, when queried by the newspaper PM for comment on Hitler's reported death, wired back, "Who cares?"

By Sgt. BILL HOGAN Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2 (Delayed)—Although afternoon papers carried reports of Hitler's death in headline type six inches high—"Hitler Dead"—and in smaller type, "German Radio Says," there was no discernible elation among either the people of the city or those concerned with the conference here.

In fact, the principal feeling here was one of indifference to Hitler personally. Skepticism was the immediate reaction to the Hamburg announcement last night that Hitler had died at his command post in Berlin. The precedent for hesitancy before any spontaneous display was established in this city last Saturday, when headlines circulated through the conference halls bearing premature reports of the end of the war in Europe—a flurry of excitement which even Molotov applauded politely from his rostrum in the plenary session.

The only ruffle of excitement when papers appeared Tuesday afternoon in the opera house after a speech by the South African Premier, Marshal Smuts, was gleeful squeals from teen-aged junior Red Cross girls acting as usherettes for the session. The press gallery reaction was typical—fine if so, but doubt that it makes any difference. Others in the galleries expressed outright skepticism, some feeling it might be a ruse to get the Fuehrer from the Reich in disguise, possibly to Spain.

What War Costs

NEW YORK, May 3 (ANS)—The war has cost the American people enough to build an 8,000-dollar house for every family in the country. Mordecai Ezekiel, Economic Adviser to the Secretary of Agriculture, said today, before the Womens' Action Committee for Victory and Lasting Peace. He estimated the cost to date at 272 billion dollars.

MAIL CALL

MAJOR CHURCHILL

Dear Editor:
Describing the events leading up to the war in your article on Hitler, you state, "Hitler took the rest of Czechoslovakia and Mr. Chamberlain rose in the House of Commons to accuse the Fuehrer of breaking his promise. Of action, however, there was none."
On the contrary, there was action which was ultimately to guarantee Poland and a number of other threatened countries against any attack made upon them by Germany. This guarantee was the first effective step taken by any state to resist German aggression and proved to be the actual occasion of Britain's declaration of war upon Germany six months later.
At the time when the guarantee was given, in March 1939, all but the wilfully blind could see that Hitler was bent on world conquest and that this action by the British Government was bound to involve us in war with Hitler's Reich. Consequently it is not too much to say that the guarantee was in effect a delayed action declaration of war upon Germany. It was moreover the first link in a chain of consequences the agreeable results of which we are witnessing today. Now that the European war is coming triumphantly to an end after nearly six years of fearful sacrifice, Englishmen do not care to have it forgotten that they declared war upon Germany with their eyes open and were the first except for Poland to take up the challenge of German aggression.
—Maj. Randolph S. Churchill

TROLLEY SONG

Dear Editor:
Greater men than the 15 "Landseers" of Leipzig are known in the past to have retreated from glory by tram. General von Cramon, during the last war representatives of the German Army at GHQ of their Austro-Hungarian allies at Baden near Vienna, gives the following description of the last journey of that distinguished body:—

"On Nov. 5th, 1918, a special tramcar left the Josephsplatz and, without any further ceremony, conveyed to Vienna all the officers who had remained with GHQ at Baden."
From the incident reported in a recent Stars and Stripes, it would seem that the use of tramcars has since been authorized for all ranks of the army of the Greater German Reich when about to throw in the sponge.

MEMORIAL

Dear Editor:
The passing away of our beloved President has, I am sure, been not only a great shock, but a personal loss as well to us overseas. I feel certain that each of us would like to do something to preserve the memory of the greatest friend of humanity, and champion of the oppressed that the world has known.
We can do something, and with very little effort on our part. With the cooperation of "hieher-ups," a full-scale drive could be put on to erect a real memorial or statue in Washington or Hyde Park from the men in both the European and Mediterranean Theaters.
I am sure that most of the men would voluntarily subscribe one dollar of their June pay for a worthy cause such as this. Let's let the folks back home know what we thought about our Commander in Chief.

Munich, Which 'Heiled' Hitler First, Now Calls Him A Bum

By Sgt. PETER FURST
Staff Correspondent

MUNICH, May 2 (Delayed)—There was no sorrow today in this "capital of the Nazi movement" when the news of Adolf Hitler's death reached the people.
The appointment of Admiral Karl Doenitz as Hitler's successor caused some surprise, and was generally regarded as a Nazi admission of complete defeat. Surprise was also expressed by civilians questioned in front of the Majestic Rathaus here that the Nazis should have appointed anyone at all as Hitler's successor, and especially one whose name seems hardly known among the ordinary population.
People laughed when told that Doenitz had appealed to the nation to fight on, pointing to a seemingly endless column of new Kraut prisoners marching four abreast down Munich's main street this afternoon on their way to a PW cage.
Happiest of all at the news of Hitler's death were four Germans who had recently been evacuated from the notorious concentration camp at Oranienburg, near Berlin, brought to Salzburg and released there "during differences of opinion among the SS."
All four were Communists, and all were eager to know news of their comrades at Buchenwald and Dachau. Karl Maliske of Breslau said that Hitler's death was the best news he had heard for 12 years, but that he felt the Fuehrer shouldn't have got off so easily. Otto Gaede and Kurt Lambrecht, both of Berlin, said that they felt the job of fighting the Nazis should be much easier, now that the people no longer have a demi-God to worship.

TIME OF DECISION

Unhappiest of all was a Munich city official who sat in his Rathaus office awaiting the American verdict about his future. He was staring out of the window at the thousands of prisoners marching past, and said that he was too stunned by that picture of obvious defeat to be able to express any opinion about Hitler's death. He had to think twice before he even remembered who Karl Doenitz was.
Ludwig Gessler, a bombed-out evacuee from Coblenz, said that Germany was in ruins and that he and his people had nothing left today "because we followed that man Hitler."
"Simple death is too good for a man like him," the fellow added.
At the famous Hofbrau beer cellar, now a great empty building, the janitor said he didn't care whether Hitler was dead or alive, but that he felt it was a good thing for Germany that he was dead. "I wasn't here when the bomb exploded in this hall," he said. "It would have been better for Germany if it had killed him then."
Matthias Lanzl, 70, a builder, said "It's about time." Then he expressed doubt that Hitler had really been killed in Berlin.

LONG TIME DEAD

"I think he's been dead since July 20," he said, and several bystanders nodded agreement.
At the magnificent marble and pinewood mansion of Professor Herman Giessler, leading Nazi architect, Chief of Todt Organization and brother of Paul Giessler, Gauleiter of Bavaria, the maid, a Frau Rupprecht, said Hitler's death was a good thing, and that Bavarians never had gone for the Nazis like "the loud-mouthed Prussians."
Professor Giessler, a close associate of Hitler in his grandiose building plans, was reported killed early Saturday morning by Bavarian Freedom Movement agents, together with two other brothers of the Gauleiter.
A man who said he remembered clearly how Hitler hid from the Reichswehr bullets during the beer hall putsch here in 1923, called him a "coward."

Senate Votes To Promote Imprisoned Pacific Vets

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP)—The Senate voted to promote enlisted men and most officers of the Armed Forces who were in the Pacific Dec. 8, 1942 and now are prisoners of the Japanese. The bill now goes to the House.
Advancement by grade in rank will be given dating back to Dec. 8, 1942, with additional grade for each succeeding year.
The Army and Navy opposed the measure on the ground that promotions should be based on individual merit. Only officers below the grade of colonel or corresponding grade in other services will be affected.

Kiel Base Raided

LONDON, May 3—Four attacks on the German naval base at Kiel were made today by RAF Mosquitoes, the Associated Press reported.

America's Handling Of PWs Defended

WASHINGTON, May 3 (ANS)—The House Military Affairs Committee, considering charges that German prisoners of war in this country are being "coddled," yesterday heard the Army treatment of PWs defended by spokesmen for the War Department and the Red Cross.

Maurice Pate, Director of the Red Cross Prisoners of War Relief, said that the U. S. treatment of German prisoners, in accordance with the Geneva Convention, had greatly helped the condition of American prisoners in Germany.

The success of Allied armies sweeping through France and Germany and disruption of transportation, Pate said, was one of the main causes for the later extreme malnutrition of American prisoners.

Brig. Gen. B. M. Bryson read a cablegram from General Dwight D. Eisenhower which said that the confidence of Nazi soldiers that they would receive good treatment from Americans has caused a "considerable number" to surrender.

A HOPE

Not long ago we said goodbye
In parting, and since then;
My only wish and prayer has been,
To see your smile again.

God knows what things will come to pass,
What trouble and travail;
But still, the thought of you, sweetheart,
Won't let my spirit fail.

Some day we two will meet again,
And when that time is here;
I hope that you will love me still,
As I love you now, my dear.

Whatever you do and wherever you

It makes little difference to the ones
Who read your sophomoric puns

Whether you prefer poetry to prose
Or ballads to sonnets instead there

Than your whimsy unless it's your verse.

CANDLE CONVERSE

Oh, little flicker
How many poets are prone to dicker
With words to describe you—
Soft little flame,
Is there no grieving, no anger or shame
That you will succumb to?

So unconfessed
Coldly indifferent, completely possessed
With naught but your own self
As you grow old
Dancing with zephyrs you weave like a bold,
Mischievous white elf.

You are the high-light
Sharp and defiant you stand in the black night
So pure and inviolate.
Here in the shadows
Do I sit envious, cursing the mad vows
Promoting a new hate.

Where comes your power Causing this sad one to seek and devour
Your cool cordiality:
Can it be that
This jealous one sees there mirrored in you
His own personality?

The Surrender Of The Germans In Italy Was Big News To Everybody

Two B-17s carried The Stars and Stripes and this banner to forward areas yesterday. Holding the banner are: Pfc. M. Sydorak of Chicopee Falls, Mass., MP Sgt. O. D. Miller of Brooklyn, Mich., and Cpl. J. Thornycroft of Newark, N. J.

Men at the Infantry Reconversion Training Center greeted the news with cheers. These boys, for many of whom reconversion means a return to the front lines, whooped it up in the mess hall. (Staff Photo by Sgt. G. Udel)

5th Army Doughs Look Back On Grind, And Guys Who Fell

By Sgt. STAN SWINTON
Staff Correspondent

WITH THE VICTORIOUS 5TH ARMY, May 2 (Delayed)—We have won. Not many have heard the great news yet, and it is not a time of celebration. That will come later. Now the veterans who fought through the grim battles of Italy and those who replaced the men who fell on the road from Paestum are still questioning the magnificent truth. After so long, it is hard to comprehend.

The war of mud, mules and mountains is history. A rifleman may stand and not be shot at. For the men of the 5th Army—spread from the French border to Austria's approaches—it means more than words can express. To others—the 3rd, 45th and 36th Divisions, now fighting in Austria—the overwhelming news must mean as much, even though they have left us now.

Soon all will know. Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott Jr., commander of the 5th Army, flew to the IV Corps area with the news. Brig. Gen. Donald Carleton, Chief of Staff, brought it to forward elements in the Alps.

The long lines of camouflaged trucks crammed with Von Vietinghoff's beaten soldiers are moving back across the highways now. Yesterday they still fought at the head of Lago di Garda.

In the kaleidoscope of the past the combat men see Hangman's Hill, the red poppy fields of Anzio, the beaches of Paestum, the Venafro billiard table, the rapid Garigliano.

There was the Gustav Line, the Gothic Line, the Genghis Khan Line. There were the mountains—Battaglia, Sole, Adone, Belvedere and so many more.

The rows of white crosses grew longer. The old men wore out their luck. In rifle companies a handful were left, or none at all. The Army ground north. Then came the brilliant Po breakthrough—one of the greatest military feats of the war—and now surrender.

Today the men who fought think of two things. One is trite, but deeply important: that the men who fell on the way shall not have died in vain. There is another thing—personal, and for which men have prayed. It is that the odds are no longer running out; the fighting man alive today has won his gamble.

Victory Issue Quickly Spurs Black Market

ROME, May 3—"Hey, complete and unconditional!" the GI yelled to his buddy, as a throng of Allied soldiers and Italian civilians surged in and out of The Stars and Stripes circulation office on Via Tritone last evening.

There was no pandemonium or confusion. Papers were bought and readers stood rooted to the spot, clogging foot traffic. Unbelieving passers-by glanced at the bold black headline plastered in the office windows and joined the crowd at the circulation counter.

Italians stood around leaning on bicycles; a command car came by, with hands holding papers stuck out at every angle to get light to read by. Patrons of horse-drawn taxis were reading. Life seemed to be suspended a minute while the news was digested.

An occasional GI let out a yip, but generally little excitement was evident. MPs, seeing a crowd, and unaware of the news, stopped to find out if a baby riot was going on. A Red Cross girl had tears in her eyes.

Ten minutes after the edition went on sale, a black market was functioning, with kids getting a grip on a few papers and reselling them at a marked-up price, or for cigarettes. Peace, apparently, had a price.

Gen. John J. Phelan's Son Is Killed In Italy

NEW YORK, May 3 (ANS)—Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan, member of the New York State Athletic Commission, was advised by the War Department yesterday that his son, Lt. Col. John J. Phelan Jr., had been killed in action in Italy.

Young Phelan was a West Point football star and holder of numerous decorations. Ten days ago Phelan's step-son, Lt. Col. Richard Mattern, died in the Pacific Theater.

DAF Mess Tables Ring With Toasts

MAAF HEADQUARTERS, May 3—News of the German surrender in Italy was received calmly by airmen of the Desert Air Force, who have been hounding the Krauts all the way from El Alamein into the Alps. The announcement was made just as Mustangs were returning from the last mission of the day.

Every mess table in the DAF last night rang with toasts to the end of the marathon which started in the Libyan Desert and wound up near the Swiss Alps.

The month of April was a grand finale for the DAF. Over 21,000 sorties were flown in that month, and almost 5,000 German vehicles wrecked. Desert pilots flew thousands of close-support sorties for the 8th Army, smashed about half of the enemy's tank force and destroyed nearly 2,000 enemy-occupied buildings throughout the Po Valley. The final DAF achievement of the Italian campaign came on the day the news of the surrender broke: two Mustang pilots captured a 30-ship convoy in the Adriatic.

Actor A Captain

MAAF HEADQUARTERS, May 3—It is now Capt. Jeffrey Lynn. The former Warner Bros. movie star, a staff officer with the 321st Bomb Group of the 12th AAF, who has been serving overseas for the past 14 months, was promoted to that rank this past week.

It Sounded Especially Good At A Replacement Center

By Sgt. JOE BAILY
Staff Correspondent

REPLACEMENT TRAINING COMMAND HQ., May 3—News of the German surrender in Italy spread around one of the recreation rooms of the Infantry Conversion and Training Center after Pfc. Leo Ackerman of Brooklyn had blown on a trumpet and held up the bold, black headlines of The Stars and Stripes.

The gang that swarmed around his trumpet stand nearly mobbed him. These men, being hustled into trim for replacing the combat troops, let out wild yells at the news. The headlines conjured up instant visions of the war's end and home—two dreams that have a specially sweet look to doughboys and doughboy-trainees. News that the battle up ahead had ended—the one they were being "reconverted" for at the moment—vibrated a particularly sensitive cord.

Three men who came over on the Queen Elizabeth together on June 4, 1942—three years ago—gathered over in one corner and held an impromptu celebration. Pvt. Dennis P. Escots of Eden, Texas; Cpl. Leonard P. Davis of Waitsburg, Wash., and Cpl. Harold C. Carl of Sioux Falls, S. D., were with a troop carrier outfit most of those three years, until they were assigned to infantry training.

REMEMBER ANZIO

There was an Anzio veteran in the crowd, Pfc. Jack Minutlo of Shenandoah, Pa., and for him the news revived memories of the rugged days on the beachhead.

Cpl. Drew Cloud of Carlisbad, N. M., another combat veteran, saw "home on the horizon" at the news. He had had eight months' fighting with the 34th—the division, he said, that did "a hell of a lot to make this news."

An ex-armored division man, Pfc. Sidney Schweitzer of Brooklyn, overseas 27 months, had this comment: "It means we're a lot closer to victory—and maybe for some of us closer to CBI."

Thoughts of the Pacific, however, were far from the men's mind at the moment. The first reaction for most was "now for home."

Pvt. Hank Nelson of New York City said: "Man alive, now I can

Goethe And Schiller Remains Preserved

WEIMAR, Germany, May 3 (AP)—Two German civilians stole and hid the bodies of Goethe and Schiller to foil Nazi gauleiters who planned to destroy the remains of Germany's two greatest literary figures to keep them from falling into the hands of "American barbarians."

The civilians turned the remains over to AMG officials in Jena. They will be re-interred in shrines here, where both Goethe and Schiller were born.

go home to my wife and daughter." Hank, when some of the men kidded him, confessed he had been over only two months. "That doesn't make home sound any less good," he insisted. A fellow standing by took his part, Pvt. Al O'Connell of Taunton, Mass.—also over two months.

"Let's not forget the men who did the job," said Pvt. Warren E. Eggers of Rahway, N. J. "We all get to talking about home. I say, a damn good job, well done."

Eggers used to be with the 12th AAF. Pfc. Woodrow W. Pritchard of Rock Hill, S. C., another ex-Air Force man (the 15th), chimed in to say it was "damn good news."

When you shift from the air force into the rigors of infantry training, the two agreed, any news that might speed up the war is "deeply appreciated."

TOUGH GRIND

Some of the men said the grind had been stiff the past few weeks. "The fellows out on night problems tonight will get a boot out of this news," said one. A lot of men had been going up to join the combat outfits. The pressure was pretty high when the northern drive was on, they said.

Pvt. Joseph Mulqueen said, "Thank God it's over." Pvt. Rex A. Joslin of Houston, Texas, crowding in to get a paper, shouted, "Let me have a look—best news I've heard yet."

Pvt. Derrell Nichols of Ocala, Fla., thought it was "about time," and Pvt. John A. Harris of Abbeville, S. C. felt "it won't be long now."

Pfc. Ackerman, the trumpeter, and Pfc. Al Benaquista of Newark, N. J., a bakery man turned doughboy, said they had written a "sure hit" song and would dedicate it to this night. "My Dream Waltz," they called it.

Doubting MPs Halt Naples Celebration—Then Join In

By Sgt. DON WILLIAMS
Staff Correspondent

NAPLES, May 3—This great port city of southern Italy which has seen at first hand the destruction of war, took the first announcement of the end of the war in Italy with surprising calm.

Crowds jammed the vicinity of the opera house, the Galleria and at various intersections along the Via Roma to seize and read avidly the extra editions of The Stars and Stripes and the local Italian papers which brought them the long-awaited news. But there were few demonstrations.

Collectively, enthusiasm ran high, but individually the reaction was unusually placid.

T-5 Michael Kraszcowsky of New Britain, Conn., formerly a half-track driver with the 14th Armored Battalion, first heard the news when he was coming off KP at a replacement center where he was awaiting shipment back to his outfit after a spell in the hospital for jaundice and pneumonia.

A veteran of Anzio, he said his first reaction was one of relief that the fighting was over. "But now," he said, "I think I'll get drunk."

Pvt. Zane Bogdanowicz of Cohoes, N. Y., and Pfc. Anthony Mancuso of Flushing, N. Y., both members of a local MP outfit with 21 months overseas service, said they first heard the news from an Italian civilian, but didn't believe it. Still disbelieving, they broke up an impromptu celebration in front of the Officer's Red Cross where GIs, sailors and civilians were milling around joyously. Told that the news was true, they said that they wouldn't break up any more gatherings and, as a matter of fact, would be tempted to join in.

Pfc. Edgar Webster of Reading, Mass., a veteran of the Italian and French campaigns with the 36th Division, also said he had been inclined to disbelieve the news which he first heard at the 30th General Hospital, where he is recovering from trench foot suffered in France. The dramatic announcement of the war's end in Italy was read in the Red Cross Theater just before the end of the picture. The crowd applauded loudly, then subsided to see the end of the picture.

Capt. Robert Campbell of Greensboro, N. C., a Flying Fortress pilot who has completed his tour of duty and is awaiting return to the United States, was in the theater at the time. He said he felt no particular exultation, and hoped only that the end of hostilities would not affect his anticipated return home.

Pvt. Paul Thompson of West Block, Ala., with more than 30 months of overseas service in North Africa, Sicily and Italy behind him, summed up the GI reaction pretty well.

"I think it is very good," he said, "and I hope I'll be getting out of here soon."

Black Typhus Appears In Dachau Prison Camp

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, May 3 — An epidemic of black typhus is breaking out in the liberated concentration camp at Dachau, Reuter's reported today. More than 2,000 cases have been reported to Allied authorities.

Reuter's said all possible precautions were being taken to prevent the spread.

Po Valley Art Loss Surveyed By AMG

WITH THE 5TH ARMY, May 3—Although the list of destruction is not yet complete, preliminary reports indicate that many irreparable losses to the art world have been wrought in the Po Valley.

In Mantua, the famous 14th century San Francesco church is at least two-thirds destroyed, according to Capt. Dean Keller, former professor of fine arts at Yale University and now AMG Officer of Monuments. The Germans, he said, maintained an arsenal adjoining the cloister. The churches of San Leonardo and San Maurizio also suffered severe damage, and San Simone was totally destroyed.

Verona's greatest art losses were at its three ancient bridges, which were blown up by retreating Germans. The bridge of the Scaligeri, the Ponte Castelvecchio and the Ponte Pietra were wrecked, even though Field Marshal Kesselring had left a written promise with Italian authorities at Verona that the bridges would not be blown. Capt. Keller said that the loss of the bridges was comparable to the vandalistic destruction of the Santissima Trinita in Florence.

Other serious damage in Verona was at the Palazzo Canossa, where the famous ceiling fresco of Tiepolo was completely destroyed. Eighteen of the 20 churches in the city were hurt, four badly damaged. The Teatro Filarmonico was destroyed, but most of its treasure of instruments and music has been saved.

BUENOS AIRES, May 3 (ANS)—Argentina signed a rubber agreement with the United States and Brazil today, under which its urgent tire and rubber needs are to be supplied in the near future, it was officially announced.

Doubt Yields To Joy As Rome Hears News

By Cpl. WALTER PULLIAM
Staff Correspondent

ROME, May 3—First news of the surrender of German armies in Italy was taken with a grain of salt by GIs and civilians in this, the first Axis capital to fall.

"Is it true?" they asked. "Did all the Nazis give up? Or is this just another Stockholm report?"

Not until they had seen the news posted in The Stars and Stripes windows, or had read special editions sold in downtown Rome, did they begin to respond.

Then they grasped each other's hands, cheered, gathered in groups to discuss the big news. Some began looking for bars for victory spees. Others rushed to GI night clubs.

On Via del Tritone, one soldier took a quick glance at the Stars and Stripes headlines, grabbed a signorina and said: "Come on, babe, let's celebrate!"

The surrender news was announced here at 6:30 PM.

Within 30 minutes after the news was posted in The Stars and Stripes circulation office window, 200 to 300 persons—soldiers and civilians—gathered outside, blocked traffic, clamored for details.

Across from the Red Cross Corso Club, an Italian radio shop began playing Allied national anthems over a public address system and announcing in Italian, "La guerra in Italia e' terminata!" Soon traffic was so jammed that MPs had to untangle it.

HAPPY DAY

"The people went wild at the news," said Pfc. Howard Deree, an MP from New Bedford, Mass.

Inside the Corso Club, Red Cross worker Jeanne Watson said GIs took the news calmly. Most of those present at the time got their first news from the Italian's PA system across the street. They leaned out of windows to see what was happening. They then resumed their games, reading and letter-writing, most of them a little skeptical of the announcement.

Most of them had been hearing and reading about resistance being virtually ended and the Germans giving up, but with fighting still going on. They also remembered all the false armistice reports and all the surrender rumors that circulated under enemy auspices. Now they wanted to know the details—exactly what it was all about, and where it came from—before they celebrated.

At the Red Cross Barberini Theater, the announcement was made just before the 7 PM show, and the fact it came from AFHQ was stressed. Several hundred GIs present burst into spontaneous applause. One shouted: "Wow! Maybe we'll get home by Christmas!"

In the Barberini lobby, a copy of The Stars and Stripes was posted, giving further details.

MPs said the soldiers in town took the news calmly and without demonstration. They said most GIs preferred to sit down and read about it—to find out what had actually happened—or to get friends to discuss the good news. MPs said they found no wild demonstrations and the Provost Marshal's blotter showed no more arrests than usual.

TOP EVENT

"It's the best thing that has happened in this whole Italian campaign," remarked Cpl. Vernon Colby of Glen Ridge, N. J., overseas 28 months, as he read the news.

"It sounds awfully good to me," said T-Sgt. Archie Leach who read the news after coming out of a movie.

Pvt. Vincent Acclardo of Johnston, R. I., who was with the 5th Army artillery from Salerno to the Volturno, declared: "They should have given up a long time ago. They were licked a long time ago."

"It was really a surprise," said Sgt. Nunzio Galante, an ATC radio

Bearer Of Tidings Is Hero At Dance

ROME, May 3—Dancing was interrupted at most GI night clubs here last night for announcement of the German surrender.

At the Tavern Club, dancers applauded and cheered the announcement made by Pfc. Jules Lieberman, club manager. Then they stood and sang together, "The Star Spangled Banner."

At one GI dance, those present learned of the surrender from copies of The Stars and Stripes brought in by a soldier. The jubilant dancers hoisted him to their shoulders.

man 28 months overseas, who saw the surrender news as he passed The Stars and Stripes office. "I thought they would fight it out to the end. It was great news."

"Wish it was all over," said Pvt. Homer Collett of Chattanooga, Tenn. "But it shouldn't be very long now."

Other typical GI comment about Rome: "I'm mighty glad to see it's over with" — S-Sgt. Wilson L. Knowles of Granite Falls, N. C. . . "Oh boy! Am I happy!"—Pvt. Conrad Rothman when he heard the news at the Corso Club . . . "Everybody should be happy about it"—Pfc. Ary Kline of Baltimore outside the Barberini Theater.

British Sgt. Cyril Steed, serving with the Allied Commission here, added The Stars and Stripes surrender issue to his collection of historic newspaper editions. He has copies of Stars and Stripes and Union Jack announcing the German evacuation of North Africa, the Allied landings in Sicily, the Allied invasions of Italy and the abdication of Benito Mussolini.

He is now looking forward to the days when he can add two more historic editions to his collection—one announcing the end of the war in Europe, the other announcing the end of the war with Japan.

Schools Need Rough Postwar Football, Lou Little's Claim

NEW YORK, May 3 (ANS)—The recent rule changes adopted by the NCAA have set the stage for college football's roughest and most aggressive era which will follow right after the war, according to Lou Little, Columbia University coach. "College football has learned its lesson," Little said. "War has taught us we cannot afford to soften up our athletes and frankly the boys don't want the bumps taken out of football." The Lions' coach has long advocated a wide open game and now says it's absolutely necessary if colleges want to compete for popularity with the rapidly expanding professional leagues.

Little said the boys returning from the last war liked to play their football rough and he should know because he was one of them. He went back to Pennsylvania after two years in the Army and shortly thereafter commenced one of the busiest coaching and playing careers in the country.

"Unfortunately, however," Lou continued, "after a couple of years reformers started hollering 'over-emphasis' that there was too much emphasis on winning, the game was too rough and so forth. Well, I don't think they'll get away with it this time."

"The number of men who returned to college after the last war was insignificant compared with the hordes who will return this time," Lou commented. "They won't want to say 'excuse me,' when they belt the opposition."

College football will definitely furnish competition for the professionals after this war in Little's opinion and Columbia will be one of the schools that will play right up to where the rule book allows.

Coast League To Play Full Schedule VE-Day

LOS ANGELES, May 3 (ANS)—The Pacific Coast League will play a full schedule on VE-Day, Clarence (Pants) Rowland said today. "Our way of celebrating will be to have disabled and convalescing veterans out at the parks to see the games," said Rowland. "All the boys will have to do is give the home clubs a little advance notification that they're coming."

12th's Crew Champs Send A Dare To 15th

FLORENCE, May 3—The winning five-man dinghy crew in the 12th Air Force M'adeiz Regatta held here Tuesday has challenged the 15th Air Force to a race on the Tiber River in Rome, and the challenge is expected to be accepted in the near future.

Despite the rain the first overseas dinghy races were a success, although the program was reduced as the one-man dinghy event was cancelled. Italian crews from the Florence Boat club competed in shell races in addition to the 300-yard, five-man dinghy race, won by a crew made up of 1st Lt. Charles M. Morrison, Boston, 1st Lt. John E. Alquist, Iron Mountain, Mich., P-O John W. Amatucci, Silver Spring, Md., S-Sgt. Roland F. Haney, New Haven, Conn., and Sgt. Arthur I. Botten, Silvana, Wash. Six dinghys competed.

Lt. Morrison, captain of the winning crew, took advantage of a bad lot of photographers' flash bulbs to kiss regatta queen Sgt. Mary Bartosiewicz, of Hartford, Conn., a 12th AF Wac, ten times before the cameramen finally hid their bulbs from the rain to snap the picture.

Walker Cooper In Navy; Catches For Bob Feller

ST. LOUIS, May 3 (ANS)—Walker Cooper, catcher and captain of the St. Louis Cardinals, was inducted into the Navy yesterday and assigned to Great Lakes Naval Training Center. He was originally scheduled to be inducted into the Army on Monday, but for reasons unknown he was granted a delay, then given a choice of the services and he chose the Navy.

At Great Lakes, Cooper will team with Bob Feller, coach of the sailor baseball team, to form a battery far superior to any in the major leagues.

Ballplayers In 4-F Haven't A Chance, Says Sen. Chandler

ST. LOUIS, May 3 (ANS)—Sen. Happy Chandler, recently appointed commissioner of baseball vigorously denounced what he termed the "practice of drafting 4-Fs just because they happen to be ballplayers," and said President Truman will study the situation.

Chandler told interviewers that he had discussed the 4-F practice with the President of the United States "before I came here" and Mr. Truman said he would look into the matter. "I fear," continued Chandler, "that somebody has abused his authority when physically unfit men are inducted into the army simply because they are ballplayers. Baseball has demonstrated its worthiness to consideration. There are four million 4-Fs in this country; if we can't spare four or five hundred of them for the sport servicemen want, we can't whip anybody."

CHANDLER

Chandler said there is a possibility he may remain in the Senate besides holding the baseball job if one doesn't conflict with the other. However there is a possibility he may be forced to resign as when Judge Landis was appointed commissioner some congressmen asserted it was illegal for a federal officeholder to hold an outside job.

Chandler took a blast at gamblers, saying "they must and will not get into the game," and advised all players and umpires to remain away from racetracks to avoid public censure. He said he had polled baseball men in both the major and minor leagues on a proposal to move the commissioner's office to Cincinnati and they believe it would be ideal because of the Ohio city's central location, and with a broad grin, Chandler added: "It's also near Kentucky." He has the salary dispute of Mort and Walker Cooper under consideration.

Red Sox Win 5th Straight; Giants Rally, Hold NL Lead

BOSTON, May 3 (ANS)—The Boston Red Sox, who lost their first eight games this spring, soared to their fifth consecutive victory here yesterday as rookie Jim Wilson blanked the Washington Senators, 4-0, on four scattered hits. The New York Yankees tied for the American League lead by beating Philadelphia, 6-4, the Detroit Tigers edged the Chicago White Sox, 2-1, and Cleveland spoiled the St. Louis Browns' flag-raising ceremonies by winning the first night game of the season, 2-1, in 13 innings.

land spoiled the St. Louis Browns' flag-raising ceremonies by winning the first night game of the season, 2-1, in 13 innings. In the National League the New York Giants tossed away a seven-run lead but came back to beat the Phillies, 9-8, the Boston Braves defeated Brooklyn, 3-1, and the St. Louis Cards and Pittsburgh split a doubleheader, the Cards winning, 4-2, and losing, 11-1. The Cubs and Reds were rained out.

The Red Sox-Senators' game was scoreless until the eighth when the Sox landed on Mickey Haefner, who passed his pre-induction physical before the game, for four runs with Bob Johnson's triple with two on and Lou Finney's single with the bases loaded the big hits.

Alan Gettel won his first major league start for the Yankees as the Athletics' Russ Christopher lost after three straight victories. The Yanks came up with a cluster of singles to score six early runs and Gettel coasted home despite spotty support. Gettel's error, the Yanks' third, helped the A's to three runs in the eighth.

BENTON WINS AGAIN

Al Benton, Detroit's 34-year-old Naval dischargee, continued his brilliant hurling as the Tigers beat the Chicks. He has allowed only one earned run in three games. Rudy York's single accounted for Detroit's two runs. Losing pitcher Orval Grove scored the only run off Benton on a fielder's choice.

Nate Andrews' clutch pitching boosted the Braves into third place in the National League as the Dodgers scored only one run off seven hits, three walks and two Boston errors. Rookie Vic Lombardi, making his first start, allowed only six hits but the Braves made the most of their opportunities.

Buddy Kerr doubled to score Phil Weintraub for the Giants' ninth run and a triumph over the Phils after the Phillies clubbed Bill Voiselle and Ace Adams for eight runs to erase New York's 7-0 lead. Charley Ripple was the losing pitcher and Ace Adams the winner. Johnny Rucker of the Giants and Phillies' Vance Dinges each made four hits and Vince DiMaggio homered for the losers.

CARDS BEAT SEWELL

The Cardinals sent Rip Sewell down to his third straight defeat as they won the opener. Harry Brecheen held the Pirates in check while his mates pounded Sewell for 12 hits. Max Butcher won for the Bucs in the nightcap behind a 13-hit attack. Blix Donnelly, the first of four Cardinal pitchers, was the loser.

In Tuesday's only games, Joe Haynes allowed only one man to reach first base—Skeeter Webb who singled in the third inning—as he pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 5-0 triumph over the Tigers. Haynes faced only 28 batters, walked none and struck out only one but the Tigers were helpless and continually dribbled his pitches into the dirt. Walter Wilson was the loser.

The Red Sox beat the Nats, 5-4, behind Emmet O'Neill and some fine relief pitching from George Woods. Johnny Niggeling lost.

Rangoon Entered By British; Burma Drive Nearly Over

KANDY, Ceylon, May 3—Rangoon, capital city of Burma and the third largest port in the Indian Ocean area, has been entered by British troops, the Southeast Asia Command announced in a special communique today.

The 14th Army, in driving to Rangoon, has swept down the river and railroad corridor making a backbone of most of Burma. The swiftness with which the British and Indian troops moved south from Mandalay, through the rich oil fields of central Burma to the far southern coast, indicated that the Japanese armies have collapsed there completely.

Other units of the 14th were reported to have entered Prome, another of the larger cities of Burma, 178 miles northwest of Rangoon.

Pegu and Pyawbwe to the west of the Irrawaddy River, about 35 miles north of Rangoon, have been captured.

The Japanese in all of the most important Burmese regions have been decisively defeated, and only a few pocketed strays are left. These are trying to reach Indo-China.

The conquest of Rangoon was made certain by seaborne and airborne landings along the Rangoon River south of the city. Rangoon has been the entry port for most of Japan's seaborne supplies to her hard-pressed troops in Burma. It is the main rail center and chief port of Burma, and its taking will virtually end the long, bloody fighting in the Burmese jungles.

7th Army Collecting Nazi Field Marshals

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, May 3—Two more German field marshals have been taken prisoners by the U. S. 7th Army, Reuter's reported today.

The 7th captured Field Marshal von Spearle, who helped plan the Luftwaffe raids on London, and Field Marshal Maximilian Freiherr von Weichs. The two were taken prisoners south of Munich in the same area where the 7th captured Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt.

The four commissions will act, first by committee and then in full session, on various proposals to change the Dumbarton Oaks plan. The U. S., with 16 amendments—most of them technical in nature—is the only one of the Big Three which will propose changes, but it was understood that these were threshed out in previous U. S.-Britain-Russia-China conversations and that no Big Four division need be expected to arise around them.

With the main questions in which Russia's interests made the big news now disposed of, differences in views between the U. S. and the British as to trusteeships were beginning to emerge. United Press said the British think the U. S. plan puts too much control in military hands, and prefer that holders of trusteeships report to a special commission to be set up for the purpose, rather than to the Security Council of the world organization.

U. S. delegates will oppose the giving of Argentina some official post in the conference, Associated Press said. Many of the U. S. delegates, AP reported, were just as hesitant as Russia to open the door to Argentina because of that nation's past connections to the Axis.

"Now they want to see how far the Argentine Government will go in putting her internal and external affairs on a democratic basis before letting it acquire a position of importance in conference councils," AP said.

The deadlock on the Polish question has been broken, United Press reported from San Francisco today, but the nature of the settlement is not known. Proposals from Marshal Stalfi were "favorably discussed" at a Big Three meeting, UP said, commenting that "there has been a notable display of Big Three cordiality in the past 36 hours," and that "Molotov's geniality, in particular, is being generally attributed to the new prospect for a solution of the Polish government problem."

Food Trucks Take Relief To Dutch; Nazis Hold Fire

WITH THE CANADIAN 1ST ARMY, May 3—First truck carrying food to starving Hollanders moved through the German lines Wednesday in accordance with an agreement reached with the Germans, Reuter's reported today.

A Canadian soldier drove the truck across No Man's Land in front of the Canadian lines, and soon it disappeared behind the Nazi front, to be followed by others. A total of 1,000 tons of food was trucked through Nazi lines during the day.

LAST POCKETS OF RESISTANCE

High School Kids Battle Over Trieste

ROME, May 3—Roman students from nine high schools, continuing local demonstrations for the retention of Trieste as an Italian city, got into a brawl this morning in front of Communist party headquarters on Via Nazionale.

Shots were fired in the air. It could not be ascertained whether they were fired by the students or their antagonists, who were believed to be Communists. A later report that one boy was hurt was not substantiated.

After the demonstration on Via Nazionale, the students proceeded to the Viminale Palace, seat of the Italian Government's offices. Another fight broke out in the square here. There were no serious consequences. The palace was closely guarded by police who dispersed the crowd.

Later in the day Italian students paraded in small groups through the streets shouting, "Trieste is ours."

Bogy Bags Bacall

HOLLYWOOD, May 3 (ANS)—Humphrey Bogart, the hard-boiled screen hero, will marry actress Lauren Bacall on Louis Bromfield's Ohio farm as soon as he is freed from his present picture-making and his present wife, it was said today.

The current wife, Mayo Method, is completing her six weeks residence in Las Vegas, Nev., preparatory to getting a divorce.

as the only important physical barrier before them.

Capitulation of German forces in Denmark was expected soon. Troops trying to flee from north Germany across the Kiel canal into Denmark were taking a terrific beating from the air.

Kiel was the target of strong bomber attacks. The city was believed to be headquarters for the Doenitz Government, and Montgomery's forces were closing in on the German naval base, only 36 miles from captured Luebeck.

STILL RESIST

Some German commanders were still rallying their forces to resist. The south German radio broadcast an Order of the Day from Field Marshal Ferdinand Schoerner, last reported in command of troops facing the Red Army. Schoerner told his troops to rally around Doenitz and to continue the fight.

Dr. Hans Frank, Minister of State for Bohemia and Moravia in Czechoslovakia, issued a similar Order of the Day.

In Norway, General Boehme, German commander in chief of the occupation troops, made a declaration of the same kind.

The only west front army still encountering opposition, according to the Associated Press, was the U. S. 3rd in the vicinity of the Austrian city of Linz, but even this resistance was light and scattered.

The U. S. 1st and 9th Armies were filling in the gaps between their front and that of the Russian troops under Marshals Zhukov and Koniev. There was a pocket about 50 miles wide west of Berlin, and Soviet and American troops were moving quickly to fill it.

The Canadian 1st Army, advancing toward the North Sea, captured Oldenburg, key point in the defenses of northwest Germany. The Canadians were closing in on the North Sea pocket around Emden and Wilhelmshaven.

HOLLAND QUIET

The AP said that practically all fighting had stopped in Holland as a result of the truce to allow food shipment to Dutch civilians.

The 3rd Army took Braunau on the Inn River, Austrian border town and Hitler's birthplace, entering without a shot. Other 3rd Army troops entered Innsbruck in Austria, where the German forces had already surrendered to the Allies of the Mediterranean Theater.

Elements of the 3rd were only 40 miles north of Berchtesgaden and 16 miles northwest of Linz.

The Russian armies were storming ahead in all sectors—in northern Germany, west and northwest of Berlin, in north, east and south Czechoslovakia. The last German pocket southeast of Berlin was liquidated.

'Lucky' Col. Darby Killed By 88 Shell

him as leading a charmed life. This was particularly true to men who were among those he led through some of the most daring adventures of the war in the Mediterranean Theater.

After he led a small group at Dieppe in August, 1942, Colonel Darby (then a lieutenant colonel) brought his men to North Africa, where they landed at Arzew.

Employing night raiding tactics they learned at British commando schools, Darby's Rangers became the terror of the enemy in the early days of the Tunisian campaign.

Darby's Rangers next showed up at Gela for the invasion of Sicily. Shortly after, General George S. Patton Jr., then commander of the 7th Army, pinned a Distinguished Service Cross on Darby for the part he and his men played in the invasion. General Patton at the same time offered to promote him to full colonel. Darby turned down the "chicken" for the third time. The other two times were in Tunisia.

"I feel I can do more good with my Ranger boys than I could with a combat team," Darby explained.

From Sicily, the Rangers participated in the invasion of Italy, landing at Anzio on the Sorrento Peninsula on D minus one just north of Salerno.

The Rangers next appeared on Anzio where they remained on the beachhead for 60 days. Colonel Darby and his men returned to the States in May and Darby was given a hero's welcome in his home town of Fort Smith, Ark.

But Darby was a fighting man who was not content unless he was with his men in the field. He had to be fighting as long as there were any Germans left.

President Expected To Get Coal Dispute

WASHINGTON, May 3 (ANS)—The anthracite coal mining shutdown headed toward the White House last night, and to possible Federal seizure of the mines, the Associated Press reported.

The War Labor Board took the first step by tossing the controversy to William H. Davis, Economic Stabilization Director. Davis is expected to refer it to President Truman. The President might find it feasible to appeal to the 72,000 miners in the hard coal fields of eastern Pennsylvania to return to work, the AP said, or he might direct that the Government take control.

Already, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, as Solid Fuels Administrator, is operating more than 200 bituminous mines as a result of an order by President Roosevelt in April, and the accompanying soft coal wage controversy.

The board took action in the hard coal case after its order that production be resumed had failed to bring results. Now, says the AP, it will be up to Davis to decide whether he can apply sanctions short of seizure of the mines.

Consensus: Hitler Dead, But...

authorized a statement pointing out that the German radio report of the manner of Hitler's death "is in direct contradiction with the facts given by Himmler" at the latter's Luebeck interview with Count Folke Bernadotte.

U. S. 3rd Army troops have entered Goering's castle, Veldenstein, near Neuhaus, a New York Times reporter says, and were told there that Goering had fled southward in an armored train. It did not appear impossible that all the many stories, even including that of Hitler's death, might be elaborate cover-ups for quick getaways by top Nazi leaders.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's Foreign Minister, has dropped out of the news with word of his dismissal from Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz' cabinet, and Himmler himself has not been heard from since Sunday.

A "Voice of America" radiocast, quoted by OWI, declared that "the American people are not accustomed to believing the German radio," and added: "The end of Adolf Hitler does not end the evil system of which he was the practitioner, nor will his 'successor' be able to prevent the United Nations from completely destroying it with their armies."

At San Francisco, Sen. Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, called the Hitler-death broadcast and news of Admiral Doenitz' succession a "repetition of an old Nazi propaganda line which has always been futile."

WASHINGTON, May 3—That Hitler is dead is today regarded as true in Washington, London and Moscow; but that he died "a hero's death," as the German radio asserted, no one believes.

President Harry S. Truman, at a press conference yesterday, declared that the death of Der Fuehrer had been confirmed according to the best sources available, but that he had no information as to the manner of his death.

A Moscow communique states that Dr. Hans Fritzsche, deputy to Dr. Joseph Goebbels, was captured in Berlin by the Red Army, and that he has stated that Hitler, Goebbels and Hermann Goering all committed suicide.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower
